

Please read the FAQ page for our Terms of Service and answers to common technical questions.

Please visit the Useful Websites page for websites relevant to this specific forum. You can add your own, too!

By accessing this website, you acknowledge and agree to the terms of our Disclaimer and Privacy Policy.

[General Dictionary & Thesaurus | Medical Dictionary | PubMed | Drug Information | Chats | Featured Website |

BrainTalk Communities

Online Patient Support Groups for Neurology

www.braintalk.org - "Community and Compassion"

Specific Neurological Conditions \(A - L\)

ALS

NMT \(Page 1\)

[\[all categories\]](#)

Post New Topic Post Reply

profile | register | preferences | faq | search

UBBFriend: Email This Page to Someone!

This topic is 5 pages long: 1 2 3 4 5

Author

Topic: NMT

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

posted 01-27-2003 08:58 PM

Go to this site and read everything carefully. Join the patients forum and ask questions.

<http://www.neuromodulationtechnique.com/whatis.cfm>

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

posted 02-03-2003 10:02 PM

This is not $24,000 cost wise but it may well be 24,000 worth of help.

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

posted 02-07-2003 07:59 PM

There are a number of people now being treated with ALS. We should have some concrete results in the next couple of months.

linda5
Member

Posts: 5929
From: Registered: Oct 2000

nigels
Member

Posts: 110
From: pals dx 11/01 Sydney
Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 02-07-2003 08:06 PM

Cure2003..good to see you...have you seen any benefits from this...Lisa

 posted 02-07-2003 11:06 PM

Reply from NMT following an initial contact.
The reply is on their WebBoard so I guess I can reproduce it here.

From: "Leslie Feinberg" <feinberg@eoni.com>

Nigel;

A number of ALS patients are currently under care with NMT; but it is too early to determine their response. I am optimistic that NMT will be very helpful for ALS patients for the reason that it has been shown to be very effective for other auto-immune conditions which are triggered by infectious agents, as ALS appears to be. I hope to have more information available in the coming months.

Leslie S. Feinberg, D.C.
NMT Founder

At 05:41 PM 2/7/2003 -0500, you wrote:

>From: Nigel S

>

>Please can you advise the prospects for dealing with ALS through NMT.

>Many thanks

>Nigel

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

posted 02-07-2003 11:19 PM

People would be shocked to learn of the things successfully treated via this method- and successfully.

IP: LoggedWCG

Member

Posts: 1397

From: Ft Worth, Texas

Registered: Sep 2002

posted 02-08-2003 07:19 AM

This is from their website. I'm not sure I get it.
-WCG

How is an NMT Treatment Performed?
NMT treatment is safe, gentle, and effective. In performing this painless treatment the practitioner and patient usually face one another with the patient seated on a backless swivel chair. Each step of the NMT correction involves finding ACS faults, and then delivering the appropriate "query/ correction" script. This resets the ACS for optimal function. The overall template of these reprogramming scripts is similar. Each clinical pathway is unique to the particular aspects of the patient's condition. After each corrective step the patient swivels to place their back toward the practitioner. Then the patient is asked to perform a patterned breathing cycle while the practitioner uses the FDA approved Arthrostim instrument to stimulate vertebra of the spine with a series of gentle taps. Your practitioner may choose variations in patient position, MRT style, and method of spinal stimulation that we teach in NMT training - with equally effective results.

IP: Loggedcure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

posted 02-16-2003 09:31 PM

I am starting to get some improvement in strength and lessening of pain in the neck where atrophy is most pronounced. These are just subjective and not through any objective testing. However, I have a way of testing my autonomic system and it has improved as well.

IP: Logged

anon1436

Member

Posts: 69
 From: Dallas, TX
 Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 02-16-2003 10:16 PM

How many treatments have you had so far? I spoke to an NMT practitioner today (yes, on a Sunday), and she thinks that, with a combination of therapies including NMT, she can be of assistance. I'm curious as to how many sessions I should give it before I make a judgement. Also, what is the cost to you for the treatment (if you don't mind me asking)?

IP: Loggedcure2003

Member

Posts: 827
 From:
 Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 02-16-2003 10:31 PM

What other therapies is she suggesting. I would not let her suggest other theapies until the NMT is completed. Of course this is just my opinion. The number of sessions varies depending what your initial condition is like. A skilled person can usually bring about improvement in less than 12 sessions I would think. Everyone is different so I would not like to predict. It is also dependent on what is found during the assessment.

[This message has been edited by cure2003 (edited 02-16-2003).]

IP: Loggedanon1436

Member

Posts: 69
 From: Dallas, TX
 Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 02-16-2003 10:54 PM

She didn't get specific, but did say she has a background in homeopathic medicine and accupuncture.

IP: Loggedcure2003

Member

Posts: 827
 From:
 Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 02-16-2003 11:00 PM

Non of these treatments will hurt the NMT.

Costs can vary from $40.00 to $100.00 a session

[This message has been edited by cure2003 (edited 02-16-2003).]

anon1436

Member

Posts: 69

From: Dallas, TX

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 02-17-2003 07:31 AM   IP: Logged

Still curious, how many treatments have you had so far, that you're seeing some improvement? What is your expectation for final outcome (where do you think you'll be after 12 treatments)?

[This message has been edited by anon1436 (edited 02-17-2003).]

Paul7553

New Member

Posts: 17

From: Concord, MA

Registered: Dec 2002

 posted 02-17-2003 01:23 PM   IP: Logged

What are Ms. Feinberg's credentials? I noticed a D.C. after her name. Is she a chiropractor??

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 02-17-2003 01:32 PM   IP: Logged

He is a chiropractor. He has studied the energy methods for over 20 years I believe. There are MD and DO that use this methodology as well.

anon1436

Member

Posts: 69

From: Dallas, TX

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 02-17-2003 01:44 PM   IP: Logged

cure2003: please email me privately at anon1436@hotmail.com. I am STILL interested in how many treatments YOU have received thus far, and what you expect at the end.

Thanks.

nigels

Member

Posts: 110

 posted 02-17-2003 09:55 PM   IP: Logged

Cure2003

From: pals dx 11/01 Sydney
Registered: Jan 2003

I understand that they can ask the body what is wrong with it. What sort of answers do they get and what part of the body do they focus on ?
The first practitioner from Australia to attend a NMT seminar will attend soon, so currently there are no experts here.
I have ordered the books that NMT recommend so I can do some reading.
I look forward to hearing of your progress and learning more about this.
Nigel

IP: Logged

cure2003
Member

Posts: 827
From:
Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 02-17-2003 10:35 PM

Some practitioners treat over the telephone so you do not have to wait until there is an Australian trained person. Although this may seem strange it is the results that are most important. By the way what books were recommended?

IP: Logged

nigels
Member

Posts: 110
From: pals dx 11/01 Sydney
Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 02-18-2003 04:35 AM

Re books, just follow their web site.
On the upcoming seminars there is some background reading that is suggested and a list of the qualifications you need to be able to attend and a confidentiality (?) agreement that must be signed before you attend.
I have just ordered the first few books, not the general body stuff.
None of the books are written by them (I think) it is all "well known" sort of stuff, the NMT guys have just put it all together a bit better. (is what they say)

I was thinking if the NMT guys were focusing on the Liver, or wherever, we can support their focus with our alternative knowledge.

I am even more intreiged (sp) if this can be done over the phone...
(spell checker license has expired !)

IP: Logged

gijoe

 posted 02-18-2003 07:50 PM

Member

Posts: 43
 From: Richmond Va USA
 Registered: Jan 2003

I contacted an NMT Practitioner in Northern Va. She was on the practitioner resource list under MNT: The Feinberg Technique. She stated she has never Treated PALS but seemed energetic to tackle it. She stated she would contact another MNT Practitioner in Texas as a resource for her. The initial visit is tomorrow and is expected to last 90 minutes which includes the initial assessment and the first treatment. The total cost for the first visit is $150.00. The follow up cost is determined by how many methods of treatment are used which may include acupuncture and/or cupuncture. We are in the early stages of ALS, diagnosed 12/02, and we are being as aggressive as possible. Called the "doc" today requesting Celebrex and he approved. Current meds are minocycline along with creatine and CoQ-10 along with many supplements. We will let everybody know how the visit goes tomorrow.

IP: Loggednigels

Member

Posts: 110
 From: pals dx 11/01 Sydney
 Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 02-18-2003 10:00 PM

Fantastic, good luck.

They recently upgraded their web board, and it is quite sophisticated, until everyone got to know how to use it there was all sorts of questions / answers / comments being passed around in the public arena.

There is a public and a practitioners area of the board.

The questions and the support were very interesting and it was fantastic to see technology being used like this.

It seems that if you go to one NMT practitioner, they are very happy to get ideas from other practitioners, and that is also bourn out in your report. Please continue to report, Nigel.

IP: Loggedtickman65

Member

Posts: 308
 From: Huntington, NY -- Dx
 10/00
 Registered: Apr 2001

 posted 02-19-2003 08:29 AM

Cure.... That's great news that you are feeling stronger in your neck. Please keep us informed with any changes, positive or negative, that you experience. I'm interested in this therapy and have been doing what I believe is a similar, but not exactly the same, treatment for over a year. It is Meridian Therapy is based on correcting the faulty pathways in the body. I don't know if it has slowed my progression, but I definately feel it when I miss a treatment. I have been receiving 2 treatments a week for over a year.

Never stop believing!

Rob

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 02-19-2003 11:01 PM

If anyone is interested I can give you email of doctor who has had success with ALS and other neurological diseases. Give me your email.

IP: Logged

BarryIL

Member

Posts: 54

From: St. Elmo, IL USA

Registered: Oct 2002

 posted 02-20-2003 12:35 PM

Cure2003,

I'm interested. barrycoughlin@direcway.com

Thanks!

IP: Logged

gijoe

Member

Posts: 43

From: Richmond Va USA

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 02-20-2003 09:10 PM

Yesterday we drove to D.C.to see the NMT Practitioner.Since it was the intitial visit she spent 3 hours with us.I am the CALS and Dennis is the PALS.The first half hour was spent on health history and symptoms leading up to the diagnosis and current symptoms.We provided all medications and supplements.She stated not to change any "Western" treatments and what she would provide should not be used as a substitute but as an addition so that Dennis would get a more holistic treatment regime.She gave an overall history of the techniques.The process went exactly as described by WCG a few lines back. She would ask a question such as "Is the ALS caused by a toxic substance? While sitting in front of Dennis with his left arm straight out in front of him at shoulder level. At the end of the question she would push down on his clenched fist. If she was able to push his arm down. The answer was yes. If she could not push his arm down or not as far as the previous question, the answer was no. Some of the questions were out loud and some were to herself so the answers could not be controlled by the patient. I wish I could have taped it. But I saw the procedure as fascinating. This is only my initial opinion but I felt a little sense of "hokiness". After all, the practitioner could sway the answers with her strength. Dennis did not feel that way. Dennis went to med school for 2 years and was a PA in cardiac surgery. Many of the questions related to getting to the cause of the ALS such as trauma, toxin, virus, or some pathogen. The response that was yes for Dennis was a pathogen. I asked the practitioner what was her training background and she responded that she is an OMD i.e. Oriental Medical Doctor. She got her degree in Bethesda MD via NIH, National Institute of Health. Her office also included certifications in acupuncture. A session of acupuncture followed. He had one needle on the top of his head. One in his chest, six in his stomach and several down his legs to his ankles. She stated the purpose of this treatment is to open up energy pathways for the muscles. Dennis barely felt the needles.

At the end of the 3 hour session, Dennis was tired and she warned him that he would be at the end. When Dennis gets tired his slurring of speech normally increases but at the end of this session his voice was slightly better. I noticed the change and so did the practitioner even though it was slight, it was an improvement. He has recently had problems with cold feet. Dennis can still walk with a cane but he can not move his ankles and can slightly wiggle his toes. Today he states that his feet are not as cold and he can wiggle his toes a little more.

The practitioner felt that the session went well and so did Dennis.

She felt that 10 sessions should help doing NMT and Acupuncture. After that the body needs a break then a re-eval if needed.

Something else she stated was that "Eastern" Medicine does not believe in the "autoimmune" concept of disease. Diseases are a result of mixed messages by the body. The goal of Eastern Medicine is to correct the messages with various techniques, nutrition, and supplements.

She wanted to do 2 sessions a week but we could only commit to once a week. She also stated that Dennis would also benefit from seeing a chiropractor which would open up the messages from the brain to the muscle fibers.

The cost of the session was 150.00. This is what she will charge for each session which covers the cost of the NMT and the acupuncture. The sessions with take approx. one hour.

Nutrition was discussed at length.

I'm tired, Where is the spell check when you need it.

↑ posted 2.20.2000 (see next sheet)

IP: Logged

next newest topic | next oldest topic

This topic is 5 pages long: 1 2 3 4 5

All times are ET (US)

Administrative Options: Close Topic | Archive/Move | Delete Topic

Post New Topic Post Reply

Hop to:

Contact Us | MGH Neurology | Privacy Statement

Powered by INFOPOP @2000
Ultimate Bulletin Board 5.47b

Please take a moment to fill out the Pew Internet & American Life Project's E-Patients Survey.

Results will be posted here in the near future, and it will greatly help the medical community understand and work with patients who use the Internet!

If anyone has any questions or comments about it, please post here.

Here are some of the results from a BrainTalk survey we did back in October.

Required Reading - "Netiquette": The Etiquette of Cyberspace

By accessing this website, you acknowledge and agree to the terms of Massachusetts General Hospital's Official Disclaimer and Privacy Policy.

Interested in financially helping this community?

Thank you, and please see the following pages about either personal donations or corporate/foundation sponsorship

This BrainTalk Communities WebRing site is owned by John Lester

List All Sites - View Statistics - Join!

[Previous | Skip Next | Next 5 Sites | Random Site | Next]

These forums are owned and maintained by the Department of Neurology at Massachusetts General Hospital
 WebSpinner/Community Manager - John Lester

Please read the FAQ page for our Terms of Service and answers to common technical questions.

Please visit the Useful Websites page for websites relevant to this specific forum. You can add your own, too!

By accessing this website, you acknowledge and agree to the terms of our Disclaimer and Privacy Policy.

General Dictionary & Thesaurus | Medical Dictionary | PubMed | Drug Information | Chats | Featured Website |

BrainTalk Communities

Online Patient Support Groups for Neurology

www.braintalk.org - "Community and Compassion"

Specific Neurological Conditions \(A - L\) [\[all categories\]](#)

ALS NMT \(Page 2\)

Post New Topic Post Reply

profile | register | preferences | faq | search

next newest topic | next oldest topic

UBBFriend: Email This Page to Someone!

This topic is 5 pages long: 1 2 3 4 5

Author

Topic: NMT

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

posted 02-20-2003 09:54 PM

One can measure quite objectively the change in the heart rate variability with this treatment. This is a sign of movement to health as it improves. Placebo does not affect the HRV. There is nothing that can quite move the SDNN scores as this type of treatment.

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

posted 02-20-2003 10:16 PM

gijoe, please keep us to date on the progress. This is a different paradigm of healing and it is tough to understand at times especially when we are used to allopathic model. If these results were from the use of a medication we would all be jumping on board.

[This message has been edited by cure2003 (edited 02-20-2003).]

[This message has been edited by cure2003 (edited 02-21-2003).]

nigels

Member

 posted 02-21-2003 02:31 AM

This is fascinating.

My books have arrived and I am reading.

tickman65 does this report fall in line with what you are doing ?

cure2003 and gijoe please keep reporting.

Posts: 110
From: pails dx 11/01 Sydney
Registered: Jan 2003

IP: Loggedcure2003

Member

 posted 02-23-2003 10:05 PM

Posts: 827
From:

Registered: Jan 2003

Barry I will get you that name of the doctor. I filed it away where I would not forget and have now forgotten.

NMT is really quite wonderful and I used it on someone the other day to remove an aggravating tooth pain. That evening I was told the pain had still stayed away (disappeared). I will find out if is still gone or has come back. I hope people take a serious look at this.

IP: Loggedtickman65

Member

 posted 02-24-2003 12:15 PM

Posts: 308
From: Huntington, NY -- Dx
10/00

Registered: Apr 2001

Nigels, this is very simltar to what I'm doing. Please, for those of you who are trying this, keep updating those of us on the forum.

Never stop believing!

Rob

IP: Loggedcure2003

Member

 posted 02-26-2003 10:39 PM
IP: Logged

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

Could the rest of you using NMT or other energy techniques please report your results.

IP: Logged

mschartman

Member

Posts: 72

From: San Diego, CA USA

Registered: Dec 2002

 posted 02-26-2003 10:45 PM

I have a sister who is a chiropractor and is into applied kinesiology. I sent her the link and am going to try and get her to do the training.

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 02-26-2003 11:21 PM

Your sister is a perfect candidate for the training. She will be astounded how it will change her practice and hopefully help you.

IP: Logged

nigels

Member

Posts: 110

From: pals dx 11/01 Sydney

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-03-2003 03:59 AM

Cure2003....

I am thinking about your improved neck....

Do you think this is from treating ALS or do you think it is from treating some secondary (or other) effect (either related to or cause by ALS or not).

What I am thinking is we seem to have all sorts of improvements happening, such as..

Your neck strength

Garry's leg strength

eveneven

AIDs cocktail

plus others

As well as throughout history, various people have stated that they have improve on all sorts of treatments.

I feel sure they are all improving, but is it improving the ALS or is it this other thing !

I feel it is not the ALS.

How do you think you could decide if it is the ALS that is being improved ?

IP: Logged

MuonOne

Member

Posts: 2397

From: New York, New York, USA

Registered: Sep 2001

 posted 03-03-2003 07:24 AM

A lot of the research results are mystifying even the researchers. They don't occur often and they don't often repeat effectively.

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-03-2003 07:36 AM

Improvement is from treating infections.

IP: Logged

Dannyc

Member

Posts: 55

From: Richmond, Va. USA

Registered: Dec 2002

 posted 03-03-2003 08:21 AM

What does your neuro and Als clinic say about this treatment and are you getting strength test before and after? What periment gains do experct after the 12 treatments? The treatment has been around and should be solid answers. Are their any cost other then the 40 - 100 dollars a visit? I live in Virginia and will try it, but first will the D.C. give some referances of people that it has helped with ALS after 12 visits? Im sure they would be glad to share the good news.

IP: Logged

gijoe1

New Member

Posts: 2

From: Richmond Va

Registered: Mar 2003

 posted 03-03-2003 08:37 AM

We will be traveling to DC tomorrow for another NMT and Accupuncture session.The practitioner would like to communicate with other practitioners treating PALS around the country using both NMT and or Accupuncture.She is very interested in taking on the challenge of treating PALS.Please provide either phone numbers or email addresses.

We will report after session tomorrow.

Dannyc- I see you are in Richmond too.If you want to make contact with us just email us.

Jim

IP: Logged

Dannyc
Member

Posts: 55
From: Richmond, Va. USA
Registered: Dec 2002

 posted 03-03-2003 09:47 AM

Jim we have a small business also. thecyrstalmaster@aol.com

IP: Logged

cure2003
Member

Posts: 827
From:
Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-03-2003 11:24 PM

NMT practioners are consulting with each other so we will get better treatments as they share their findings.

IP: Logged

Bonnie Shall
Member

Posts: 914
From: Oswayo, Pa. USA
Registered: Jan 2001

 posted 03-04-2003 06:18 AM

Cure, You said YOU used this treatment on the toothache.....did you do it yourself? Can anyone do that? I am confused here...

Also, what about someone like Greg, can't hold his arm out for initial screening, wonder how they would do it?

I firmly believe in this type of health help, if the practitioner is genuine. Also, I wonder how it can be done "distance way" if it is spine manipulations.

I have Reiki certification to the second level, not as involved of course, but it is amazing what comfort it gives Greg sometimes, although I don't pretend it will heal him. (but then again it could...if it was what he needed to tune into his body's healing). Even healing touch can be of enormous comfort to a patient, but this treatment sounds much more complex and beneficial.

blessings
Bonnie

IP: Logged

[This message has been edited by Bonnie Shall (edited 03-04-2003).]

Ronniey

Member

Posts: 198
From: LONDON UK
Registered: Jul 2002

 posted 03-04-2003 06:31 AM

Best of luck to all of you trying this out.

Brings back to mind some treatment I received some 20 years ago: I suffered from tension headaches, knotted shoulders and lower back pain.

While sitting I would extend my arms, one at a time, and the practitioner would press down on my fist, I would resist. The press up on my fists, with me pressing down. Then again standing up. He would then produce from yellow-pages paper layers a shoe wedge, designed on the basis of his subjective reactions to my upward and downward fist pressures.

Surprisingly enough, despite the hocus-pocus atmosphere to me as an engineer, it seemed to work.

Could be psychological, or just a need to be cared for and "healed"

I can't believe that it could have any rational basis, but WHO CARES? If it works, thats great!

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827
From:
Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-04-2003 07:08 AM

Bonnie. there are a variety of ways that a person can be tested. A person may not have to be there if the doctor is skilled at these different ways. However, someone has to help with the treatment.

IP: Logged

Bonnie Shall

Member

Posts: 914
From: Oswayo, Pa. USA
Registered: Jan 2001

 posted 03-04-2003 12:06 PM

cure.....I am curious if you were the treating person and the dr told you what to do about the toothache, or did you just know how to treat it from your experience with this type of healing.

Muscle response testing has played a part in natural healing methods for a long time. I am curious if this is a new method of healing or one that has been around for awhile.

I guess my question really is do these practitioners have to be "medical"drs., or can anyone learn this ?? I have looked at the site but cannot find this answer. I know that healing can be sent through absence or distance healing can be done, just wondered if this falls under that kind of guideline.

[This message has been edited by Bonnie Shall (edited 03-04-2003).]

IP: Logged

HarryAZ
Member

 posted 03-04-2003 03:38 PM

Posts: 929
From: Mesa, Arizona,USA
Registered: Oct 2000

I recall an experience similar to those being discussed in this thread.

During a visit to a Lyme specialist in San Diego, she sent my wife and myself with a practitioner to determine what size of pills I should take. I don't recall the exact dosages but it went something like this: For a daily dosage of 200 mg, should I take four 50 mg pills or three 70 mg pills.

The practitioner had me lay down and would place a container of the pills on my stomach and have me put one hand over and in contact with the container. I would raise one arm up and she would pull and have me resist. Upon realizing I was too weak with ALS, she changed the format.

She, then, had my wife lay on the table with the container on her stomach with my hand over and contacting the container. I held one hand of my wife with my other hand, while the practitioner pulled my wife's extended other arm with her resisting. She claims she was able to determine which size pills were best for me by which pill size caused my wife to have the most resistance.

On the next visit I discussed this with the Lyme doc and explained to her, I was more comfortable if we could use a more practical rationale to determine pill size.

I have a question. Does this procedure fit the subject being discussed here?

IP: Logged

Ron C 2001

Member

Posts: 85
From: Birmingham, AL
Registered: Oct 2001

 posted 03-04-2003 05:26 PM

Harry,

You are too, too much. It is great to be able to laugh sometimes when following this board. In spite of the firestorm over pictures, I sure did enjoy seeing you and your handsome children.

Ron

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827
From:
Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-04-2003 11:11 PM

If you want to ask questions go to the web site and sign in to patients list.

www.neuromodulationtechnique.com

IP: Logged

wvoughty

Member

Posts: 99
From:
Registered: Dec 2002

 posted 03-05-2003 12:33 AM

Harry,

I have seen and been "desensitized" to compounds I was allergic to with this applied kinesiology technique. I have more skepticism of this than you can imagine, but I thought it worth a try. I am still not convinced it works by more than the power of suggestion but if something works we do not understand, just because we do not get it does not mean it does not work. I am not endorsing the technique for certain applications, but think it is a long way from a cure or therapy for ALS. It is hard not to laugh thinking about the experience I had except that a man with a good heart performed it on my and he is a friend now.

-W

IP: LoggedStephen Byer

Member

Posts: 467

From: Dodgeville, WI , USA

Registered: Nov 2002

 posted 03-05-2003 03:30 AM

This is not, in any way, an attempt to throw cold water on NMT. It seems that, considering as many factors of technique, efficacy, testimonials and statements from the practitioners themselves, NMT is probably no more, or less, therapeutic than that provided by a good massage therapist.

NMT may, therefore, fall best under the category of making one feel better temporarily, without effecting any form of cure or long term treatment. As Sinatra used to sing, "It's whatever gets you through the night."

SteveBIP: Loggedcure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-05-2003 07:21 PM

Stephen Byer, take that cold water back.

It would be more helpful for you to really understand the efficacy of the treatment if you received it first hand or watched someone receiving it. Have you talked to anyone who has gotten the treatment. Have you talked to any trained NMT people.

By the way, the endontist suggested that no work should be done on the tooth now as it had improved so much. But I am sure it was just coincidence. But of course the person could have had a massage. (Couldn't help but throw that in).

IP: Loggednext newest topic | next oldest topicThis topic is 5 pages long: 1 2 3 4 5

All times are ET (US)

Administrative Options: Close Topic | Archive/Move | Delete Topic

Post New TopicPost ReplyHop to:

Contact Us | MGH Neurology | Privacy Statement

Powered by  INFOPOP ©2000
Ultimate Bulletin Board 5.47b

Please take a moment to fill out the Pew Internet & American Life Project's E-Patients Survey.

Results will be posted here in the near future, and it will greatly help the medical community understand and work with patients who use the Internet!

If anyone has any questions or comments about it, please post here.

Here are some of the results from a BrainTalk survey we did back in October.

Required Reading - "Netiquette": The Etiquette of Cyberspace

By accessing this website, you acknowledge and agree to the terms of Massachusetts General Hospital's Official Disclaimer and Privacy Policy.

Interested in financially helping this community?

Thank you, and please see the following pages about either personal donation or corporate/foundation sponsorship

This BrainTalk Communities WebRing site
is owned by John Lester

List All Sites - View Statistics - Join!

[Previous | Skip Next | Next 5 Sites | Random Site | Next]

These forums are owned and maintained by the Department of Neurology at Massachusetts General Hospital
WebSpinner/Community Manager - John Lester

Please read the FAQ page for our Terms of Service and answers to common technical questions.

Please visit the Useful Websites page for websites relevant to this specific forum. You can add your own, too!

By accessing this website, you acknowledge and agree to the terms of our Disclaimer and Privacy Policy.

[General Dictionary & Thesaurus | Medical Dictionary | PubMed | Drug Information | Chats | Featured Website |

BrainTalk Communities

Online Patient Support Groups for Neurology

www.braintalk.org - "Community and Compassion"

Specific Neurological Conditions \(A - L\) [all categories]

ALS

NMT \(Page 3\)

Post New Topic Post Reply

profile | register | preferences | faq | search

next newest topic | next oldest topic

UBBFriend: Email This Page to Someone!

This topic is 5 pages long: 1 2 3 4 5

Author

Topic: NMT

Stephen Byer

Member

Posts: 467

From: Dodgeville, WI , USA

Registered: Nov 2002

posted 03-05-2003 08:01 PM

Hi Cure,

How are you? I would have been shocked if you had not responded to my early am post.

Firstly, I still didn't intend my post as "throwing cold water on NMT." Surely my statement of that and tone of message makes that clear.

Secondly, I don't believe that my or anyone's first handed knowledge, in the form of treatment and/or interview of the practitioner, would necessarily add to the empirical knowledge gained from a study of those practitioners' own writings and the writings of others both critical and supportive of NMT.

Thirdly, on the chance that my statement immediately above is erroneous (even if logically valid), I will, at the earliest possible time, both interview a qualified NMT practitioner in person and submit to NMT treatment. Please understand that, as a CALS (Ben is the PALS), the results of NMT for any of my several opportune conditions may render a tangential, rather than parallel, experience to your own.

I'm doing this, by the way, partially as a thank you for all of the truly invaluable research you have done and posted.

Best wishes,

SteveB

IP: Logged

cure2003
Member

Posts: 827
From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-05-2003 09:26 PM

Steve, thank you accepted and a thank you to you also. Working together we will find a cure.

IP: Logged

HarryAZ
Member

Posts: 929
From: Mesa, Arizona, USA
Registered: Oct 2000

 posted 03-07-2003 02:59 PM

Cure2003, I followed your advice and posted my experience on the NMT forum. I received a response from Leslie S. Feinberg, D.C., who referred me to two books on the subject rather than directly answering my question.

I want to explain, at the time I had this experience, I knew nothing about NMT, with this thread being my only exposure to the topic. Although I would like to learn more, my plate is full for the time being, not allowing me the time to read the books. I will continue to read this thread, hoping for further enlightenment. Many thanks for your help.

I phrased the question on the forum as follows:

I am a member of an ALS discussion group, which is examining NMT. I am unfamiliar with NMT, but had the following experience and would like to know if this is considered within the scope of NMT practice. If this is within the scope of NMT, could you expound on the technique described below as to why it is effective or how you feel about the following practice. Thanks

During a visit to a Lyme specialist in San Diego in 2000, my wife and I were sent with a Practitioner to determine what size of pills I should take. I don't recall the exact dosages but it went something like this: For a daily dosage of 200 mg, should I take four 50 mg pills or three 70 mg pills?

After having me lay on my back, the Practitioner placed a container of the pills on my stomach and had me put my left hand over and in contact with the container. She had me raise my right arm as she pulled with me resisting. Upon realizing I was too weak with ALS, she changed the format.

She, then, had my wife lay on the table with the container on her stomach with my left hand over and contacting the container. I held my wife's left hand with my right hand, while the Practitioner pulled my wife's extended right arm with her resisting. The Practitioner claims she was able to determine which size pills was best for me by which pill size caused my wife to have the most resistance.

IP: Logged

MuonOne

Member

Posts: 2397

From: New York, New York, USA

Registered: Sep 2001

 posted 03-07-2003 04:16 PM

you are a cure cure, you are cure2003!

HarryAZ, that's the most unusual method for finding a treatment 'style' I ever heard of.

IP: Logged

Stephen Byer

Member

Posts: 467

From: Dodgeville, WI , USA

Registered: Nov 2002

 posted 03-07-2003 06:57 PM

Muon,

I second that motion.

SteveB

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-09-2003 10:39 PM

Bonnie, this is my late response to your questions. I did the treatment with the person with the problem tooth. I have trained in the technique so am able to even treat myself. I have worked with this type of energy for at least 8 years so am rather good at doing it. However, I have spent several 10s of thousands on training. You might be able to take training in NMT. You need to ask Dr Feinberg and see if he would accept you. It will blow your mind.

For those that are being treated please continue to post your experiences and we will learn together.

[This message has been edited by cure2003 (edited 03-09-2003).]

Bonnie Shall

Member

Posts: 914

From: Oswayo, Pa. USA

Registered: Jan 2001

 posted 03-10-2003 12:50 PM

Cure,

I was not trying to pry into your personal life with my question about the healing, I had the feeling you were more trained in this work than I had previously thought when I read that information.

You are correct in thinking that I am extremely interested in this method of healing and have some training in other fields of natural healing. Of course, right now my finances do not permit me to do anything extra, and my time is solely caregiving Greg and taking care of our home and family. But I am very excited about this and the fact that you have been trained, and wish that I could learn more .

I could not access the forum of NMT chat because my email was down for several days, and so the password for me to use that was sent was unavailable. I think that the server problem has resolved in my email now.

Thank you for your straight answer and I want you to know that I am so very happy to hear this!

IP: Logged

Blessings
Bonnie

[This message has been edited by Bonnie Shall (edited 03-10-2003).]

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827
From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-10-2003 08:07 PM

Bonnie if you give me an email I will send you information that you can basically learn some of the energy techniques on your own. It is not NMT but it can be used to help with different problems as well.

Here is a site for free online video session with a particular energy protocol.

<http://www.tat-intl.com/freeVideo.htm>

[This message has been edited by cure2003 (edited 03-10-2003).]

IP: Logged

Bonnie Shall

Member

Posts: 914
From: Oswayo, Pa. USA
Registered: Jan 2001

 posted 03-10-2003 08:58 PM

Thank you so much!
bonnie1@netsync.netxxxxx..disregard x's
I really do appreciate your kindness!
Blessings
Bonnie

IP: Logged

nigels

Member

Posts: 110
From: pals dx 11/01 Sydney
Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-11-2003 06:37 AM

I asked Leslie (NMT top guy) for an update.
He advised the following...
It is on his web board so I am sure I can copy it here.

Topic: Re: NMT and ALS (5 of 5), Read 0 times
Conf: Patient's Forum
From: Leslie Feinberg feinberg@neuromodulationtechnique.com
Date: Monday, March 10, 2003 09:52 PM

Nigel;

I believe we are getting to the root cause/s of ALS. It appears that infectious agents have a role in confusing the immune system into attacking elements of the nervous system in ALS. In other such conditions we have seen excellent response to NMT treatment.

I am assisting an NMT doctor (Dr. Braswell from Atlanta,GA) in treating one of his patients with ALS. The patient saw some very concrete indications of improvement after Dr. Braswell began NMT treatment for him, such as being able to make love to his wife for the first time in over a year without experiencing severe cramps in his legs. His doctor suggested he come out here to Hermiston so that I could evaluate him. He did, we treated him over a period of a week, and in the several weeks since he was here the doctor reports the patient has had several weeks straight of improvement in his condition.

So, there is reason for optimism. Until we have had more experience with ALS patients we won't have a clear idea of who does well, and who doesn't; or what improvement can be anticipated. In the mean time we have good indications that we are making substantial improvements in some patients. The real test is how these people do over a period of a year, or two.

Leslie S. Feinberg, D.C.

At 06:57 PM 3/10/2003 -0500, you wrote:
>From: Nigel S

- >
- > Leslie
- >
- > I was wondering if it was possible to get an update on the progress you
- > are having with ALS patients.
- > I understand there are improvements happening but do you think you are - > getting down to the root cause (ALS)?
- > I am reading the books you recommend for your seminars and I find it all - > incredibly interesting.
- >
- > Many thanks
- > Nigel

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-11-2003 11:02 PM

I am trying to get one of the doctors to post his experience with treating neurological diseases. He may or may not want to do it. However, if he does not post he may share some things with me that he might allow to be posted.

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-13-2003 09:44 PM

BarryIL, I have sent you the name of the doctor who has had success with neurological diseases.

Hard to believe but I have lost interest with many of the medical possibilities after discovering NMT. I have been doing the best in the last 2-3 months.

I will continue to research but concentrate much of my energy on NMT.

IP: Logged

tickman65

Member

 posted 03-14-2003 08:36 AM

Posts: 308
From: Huntington, NY -- Dx
10/00
Registered: Apr 2001

Cure.... WONDERFUL news about your progress over the past several months. There has to be something to alternative medicine if they continue to use it after 1000's of years in the East. Have you had any objective muscle/breathing tests recently to further verify your improvements?

Never stop believing!

Rob

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827
From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-14-2003 09:53 AM

Rob, no objective tests but liquid does not come into my nose now and I assume that means the soft palate is firmer now. People are commenting that I look better and I have to admit I do feel better. This is going on 3 years since I first had difficulty swallowing.

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827
From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-22-2003 12:12 AM

For you that are trying this don't give up if you don't see immediate results. There is an MS person who has been difficult to treat and so far going on two years. Doctor said he would get worse or stay the same but never better. The treatments are starting to kick in finally and he can now sit up and is standing with help. He can roll over now in bed and tap his foot. Now if this was a drug everybody would be using it.

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827
From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-22-2003 11:32 AM

This is a general call for those trying this treatment. Could you post on the NMT patient forum so that NMT people can gain knowledge in perfecting this treatment. I also would be happy to talk to those using this modality

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-25-2003 07:35 PM

For those interested in NMT please read through the posts.

www.neuromodulationtechnique.com

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-30-2003 11:18 PM

I'm pleased with how things are going with NMT but I have decided to jump back on board and try to drive the push for a cure through researching new treatments and then posting them. For those who have lost hope or had their energy dissipate from lack of good news, let us create the good news ourselves. By the end of 2003 when we have had our big breakthrough let us all go to Miami Beach and celebrate together our new found health. I suggest we get on with writing the researchers and scientists and then posting.

IP: Logged

nigels

Member

Posts: 110

From: pals dx 11/01 Sydney

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 03-31-2003 04:04 AM

Cure2003

Welcome back !!

The first NMT man in Australia is on the other side of Australia to me !!!

So I have 5 hour flight to see him !!!

I have tried to open up communications with him but he seems a bit hesitant.

I was thinking I could go over for a week and get a treatment every day, just to see if we could get something going.

Do you think that would be benifitfial?

Thanks, Nigel

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

 posted 03-31-2003 10:31 PM

Posts: 827
From:
Registered: Jan 2003

Nigels, if you are interested in trying this modality and because of the distance I would look into doing it via long distance treatment. The thing is to find someone who is skilled in doing it from a distance and via telephone. If you are looking into this I could suggest a couple of names.

IP: Logged

cure2003
Member

Posts: 827
From:
Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 04-02-2003 10:29 PM

Nigels, why is this person hesitant to talk to you about treatment. There are now a number of people treating PALS. I know that people are being treated and responding and I don't understand why they don't post to let us know how they are doing. The NMT people are sharing and the results can thus only improve, If nothing else people can get a better quality of life and some are finding improvement. But they will have to speak for themselves.

IP: Logged

nigels
Member

Posts: 110
From: pals dx 11/01 Sydney
Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 04-03-2003 04:21 AM

I ask 5 line questions... I get one line answers.
I do not get the impression he is brimming over with confidence, but he has stated that he is helping people who he could not help before.
The long distance (remote) thing may work, but I am quite prepared to jump on a plane and try it for a week.
He is happy to help.. but I asked him to review the side of the web board that I cannot see, and even ask a few questions on the board.
I got the feeling he has not done that. (it may be a technology thing ? I dont know)

My question to you (cure2003 / others who have tried this) is, could I expect to get anything out of a week of daily treatments ? or does this take lots longer.
I was thinking I could get a local accupuncturist (sp) (or other) to continue the treatment if I can tell them what to do / how to do it. Perhaps with a monthly meeting with the NMT guy, or over the phone?
What do you think ???

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 04-03-2003 10:13 PM

It is hard to say whether a week of treatments will bring some results. You certainly cannot go and then expect to teach an acupuncturist how to do it. But using a person who is able to do distant treatment will give you a better chance if they are well trained and skilled at this treatment.

When you talk of asking the person questions are you talking of Dr Feinberg or the person in Australia?

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 04-04-2003 06:53 AM

I will see if I can get in touch with those people who are treating ALS and check what their progress and success has been. As well I will gather the common denominator in the treatment protocol. Remember this treatment is still evolving although at a rapid rate.

IP: Logged

anon1436

Member

Posts: 69

From: Dallas, TX

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 04-04-2003 07:43 AM

Cure2003 -

My practitioner has tried to contact the one you sent me, but has received no reply. If you get a chance, please have him contact her.

Thanks.

IP: Logged

next newest topic | next oldest topic

This topic is 5 pages long: 1 2 3 4 5

All times are ET (US)

Administrative Options: Close Topic | Archive/Move | Delete Topic

Post New TopicPost ReplyHop to:

Contact Us | MGH Neurology | Privacy Statement

Powered by  QINPOP ©2000
Ultimate Bulletin Board 5.47b

Please take a moment to fill out the Pew Internet & American Life Project's E-Patients Survey.

Results will be posted here in the near future, and it will greatly help the medical community understand and work with patients who use the Internet!

If anyone has any questions or comments about it, please post here.

Here are some of the results from a BrainTalk survey we did back in October.

Required Reading - "Netiquette": The Etiquette of Cyberspace

By accessing this website, you acknowledge and agree to the terms of Massachusetts General Hospital's Official Disclaimer and Privacy Policy.

Interested in financially helping this community?

Thank you, and please see the following pages about either personal donations or corporate/foundation sponsorship

This BrainTalk Communities WebRing site
is owned by John Lester

List All Sites - View Statistics - Join!

[Previous | Skip Next | Next 5 Sites | Random Site | Next]

These forums are owned and maintained by the Department of Neurology at Massachusetts General Hospital
WebSpinner/Community Manager - John Lester

Please read the FAQ page for our Terms of Service and answers to common technical questions.
Please visit the Useful Websites page for websites relevant to this specific forum. You can add your own, too!
By accessing this website, you acknowledge and agree to the terms of our Disclaimer and Privacy Policy.

General Dictionary & Thesaurus | Medical Dictionary | PubMed | Drug Information | Chats | Featured Website |

BrainTalk Communities

Online Patient Support Groups for Neurology

www.braintalk.org - "Community and Compassion"

Specific Neurological Conditions \(A - L\)
ALS
NMT \(Page 4\)

UBBFriend: Email This Page to Someone!

This topic is 5 pages long: 1 2 3 4 5

Author

nigels

Member

Topic: NMT

posted 04-06-2003 05:29 AM

Posts: 110

From: pails dx 11/01 Sydney

Registered: Jan 2003

Cure

When I ask Dr Feinberg a question I get a great response. But I am sure I can only ask about 1 question a month. (I am sure he is incredibly busy)
I asked the Australian Dr to basically do what you have just suggested, to contact all the Dr currently working with ALS and get the best current advise. I also suggested he contact Dr Feinberg as he has had some success with ALS.
Cure, if you have an 'in' to gather the collective minds of all the practitioners who are dealing with ALS, please go for it.

cure2003

Member

posted 04-06-2003 08:34 AM

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

I am going to do some more intensive posting as I will today begin the journey of contacting doctors who are treating als and try and find the common denominator. The one thing that I like is that they can go after stealth pathogens. The other thing is that there has been reported sucess with other symptoms which may be of secondary help to PALS. Dr Feinberg is incredible as he must be answering so many emails and yet he always responds.

IP: Logged

IP: Logged

nigels
Member

Posts: 110
From: pals dx 11/01 Sydney
Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 04-21-2003 04:31 PM

cure2003

How did the search for the common denominators go ?

IP: Logged

cure2003
Member

Posts: 827
From:
Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 04-25-2003 10:12 PM

PALS treated with NMT and doctors are amazed with the dramatic improvement. You people are missing out on something good.

IP: Logged

cure2003
Member

Posts: 827
From:
Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 04-25-2003 11:04 PM

Check for interview with Dr Leslie Feinberg that hopefully will be posted later. He is originater of NMT.

http://www.wbai.org/programs_archive/03/03_April_prgms.asp

IP: Logged thornbal

Member

Posts: 126
From: IN Registered: Sep 2000

 posted 04-28-2003 08:42 AM cure2003, You mention "dramatic improvement with NMT" for some patients. What type of improvements have those w/als seen using NMT?

IP: Logged

cure2003
Member

Posts: 827

 posted 04-28-2003 11:36 PM

Stopping of progression and return of function. There have been some that have not responded so more investigation needs to be done on why these people don't respond right away. However, als is a complex disease and all do not respond the same. Other response is increased energy and decrease of stiffness. This is my understanding.

From:
Registered: Jan 2003

IP: Logged

YamaHawg
Member

Posts: 310
From: Dedham, MA USA
Registered: Apr 2003

 posted 04-30-2003 03:22 AM

Hi CURE

I'm interested in trying this. I talked with someone In Weslesly MA. today about it. He did mention that some of the serious cases travled to see DR.Fienberg for treatments. DO you suggest the same or is anyone who is trained in this as good? My Email is Tigrcra2@aol.com any info you can send me? Thank you Joe

IP: Logged

cure2003
Member

Posts: 827
From:
Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 04-30-2003 07:14 AM

Dr F is the best and the founder of this system.

IP: Logged

YamaHawg
Member

Posts: 310
From: Dedham, MA USA
Registered: Apr 2003

 posted 05-02-2003 12:55 AM

I had my first visit today with Larry callum in Wellesley Ma, I found the first visit every interesting. A open mind is needed here. He asked a lot of questions using the system discribed by GI joe.I have my first treatment on May 12th two to follow that week Will this work? Maybe it will.

He did tell me that after 10 visits I should see some benifit.

We did talk about ALS and I'm his first case. He is very interested in helping me.

I did bring up that ALS is a world or trials. I asked about doing a group of people to see if this would benifit a group. Just think of the news cast if it did!

He Is willing to treat a group of people at a reduced rate. I will also add that he was more than fair on the cost of treating me. With all the expense of everything I'm doing. If you would like any infomation on this please e-mail me at Tigrcra2@aol.com
Joe

IP: Loggedcure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

posted 05-02-2003 06:53 AM

Make sure the person who is treating you is in consultation with DR F and is aware of the new material that Dr F just put out that has much to do with the nervous system.

IP: LoggedYamaHawg

Member

Posts: 310

From: Dedham, MA USA

Registered: Apr 2003

posted 05-02-2003 11:18 AM

Cure

He is away this week to see Dr F for more traning. I'm sure he will be asking about ALS. Thanks for your concern. Joe

IP: Loggedcure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

posted 05-02-2003 10:26 PM

There is a program that the practioners ca enroll in so that they keep up to date with the new findings. Also they can access Dr F in regards to patients they are treating. This is the best way to get success especially with difficult cases as in ALS. Again make sure that he has the latest update on the nervous system stuff.

IP: Loggedcure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

posted 05-04-2003 10:52 PM

If I may say so, the more people that try this the more that will be learned and the treatment will improve and so will the success rate. Remember this that the more people that are helped will soon potray the success factors that are needed. If you are able please give it a try and give permission for your data to be shared with other health practioners. A data base will then be built based on commonality of causal agents. Well you get my drift.

IP: LoggedYamaHawg

posted 05-16-2003 12:39 PM

Member

Posts: 310
From: Dedham, MA USA
Registered: Apr 2003

Hi Have had my first visit and followed by three treatments of NMT. I can report that I get tired after each treatment. That my getting up from a chair is easier. that I can stand up for more time. NOT much time! but its better than last week. Is it this NMT or just the nature of this beast? I like to belive its the NMT. Going to contuine the treatments with great hope. will keep everyone posted. Joe

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827
From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 05-16-2003 07:38 PM

Yes there can be some reaction to NMT especially if things are cleared or pathogens are being attacked. Good to hear the news. Can you email Dr Feinberg and let him know your response-or maybe he is treating you.

Thanks for the report and it is good to hear that there is some positive change.

IP: Logged

YamaHawg

Member

Posts: 310
From: Dedham, MA USA
Registered: Apr 2003

HI everyone. Had my third treatment with NMT I am getting up from a chair easier this week from last week. Going to contuine with this. will keep posting. Joe

 posted 05-17-2003 01:59 AM

IP: Logged

YamaHawg

Member

Posts: 310
From: Dedham, MA USA
Registered: Apr 2003

cure2003 can you please e-mail me.. at Tigrcra2@aol.com

 posted 05-17-2003 02:06 AM

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827
From:

You might try at least looking into this. It is certainly much less exepensive and with minimal side effects than many of the drugs that are basically useless eg the new

 posted 05-17-2003 07:28 AM

Registered: Jan 2003

research on N that Harry posted.

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827
From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 05-19-2003 10:37 PM

How many people who are taking treatments can report some improvement? How many have seen no positive results? Compared to some of the other things you are doing how would you compare NMT?

nigels

Member

Posts: 110
From: pals dx 11/01 Sydney
Registered: Jan 2003

IP: Logged

 posted 05-19-2003 11:14 PM

I though I was getting close to trying this but the first Dr in Australia with the training has not opted into the email support system. In my eyes, he has been given some tools but has lost out on all the experience that everyone else is having. It seems to me that the practitioner needs to have the tools (training), access to the latest guidelines, access to other practitioners who are treating similar conditions and a open mind to use the tools and experience to take the technique further. From the various reports I get, this technique seems to be doing things that have not been done before. As the experience with ALS builds, I believe this technique can only help.

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827
From:

Registered: Jan 2003

IP: Logged

 posted 05-19-2003 11:53 PM

Nigels please encourage him to get on the email support list. Even suggest that you pay a couple of months. It is only about 35 dollars a month.

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827
From:

Registered: Jan 2003

IP: Logged

 posted 05-25-2003 11:49 PM

I am going to take advanced training this August and then use some of this new learning. Thank goodness my voice is getting better and more back to normal.

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 06-22-2003 11:49 AM

Nigels are you getting anywhere with your practitioner getting email support or does he still feel he doesn't need it?

As well please email questions on the patient list of NMT and get some of your questions answered. This treatment is not going away and will only improve. We need more people trying it so that we can learn what is happening and then pass on to other practitioners.

nigels

Member

Posts: 110

From: pals dx 11/01 Sydney

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 06-23-2003 07:50 PM

Cure

It now looks like he has (on his own accord) signed up for the support program. I take this as a good thing, firstly he must be having some successes with NMT, secondly he sees it as having some value himself. If he has done that, then maybe he is getting a bit more excited about NMT and hopefully I will get more than a one line response from him. (I have just emaild him).

Cure, how did the advanced training go ?
Does this mean you treat yourself ?
Are any gains you have made, still evident ?
Thanks
Nigel

This topic is 5 pages long: 1 2 3 4 5

All times are ET (US)

Post New Topic

Post Reply

Administrative Options: Close Topic | Archive/Move | Delete Topic

Hop to:

IP: Logged

next newest topic | next oldest topic

Contact Us | MGH Neurology | Privacy Statement

Powered by  INFOPOP ©2000
Ultimate Bulletin Board 5.47b

Please take a moment to fill out the Pew Internet & American Life Project's E-Patients Survey.

Results will be posted here in the near future, and it will greatly help the medical community understand and work with patients who use the Internet!

If anyone has any questions or comments about it, please post here.

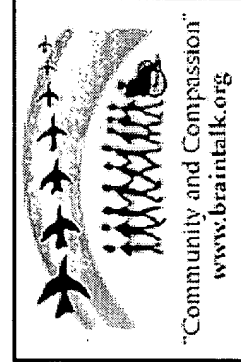

Here are some of the results from a BrainTalk survey we did back in October.

Required Reading - "Netiquette": The Etiquette of Cyberspace

By accessing this website, you acknowledge and agree to the terms of Massachusetts General Hospital's Official Disclaimer and Privacy Policy.

Interested in financially helping this community?

Thank you, and please see the following pages about either personal donation or corporate/foundation sponsorship

This BrainTalk Communities WebRing site
is owned by John Lester

List All Sites - View Statistics - Join!

Previous | Skip Next | Next 5 Sites | Random Site | Next |

These forums are owned and maintained by the Department of Neurology at Massachusetts General Hospital
WebSpinner/Community Manager - John Lester

Please read the FAQ page for our Terms of Service and answers to common technical questions.

Please visit the Useful Websites page for websites relevant to this specific forum. You can add your own, too!

By accessing this website, you acknowledge and agree to the terms of our Disclaimer and Privacy Policy.

General Dictionary & Thesaurus | Medical Dictionary | PubMed | Drug Information | Chats | Featured Website |

BrainTalk Communities

Online Patient Support Groups for Neurology

www.braintalk.org - "Community and Compassion"

Specific Neurological Conditions \(A - L\) [all categories]

ALS

NMT \(Page 5\)

Post New Topic Post Reply

profile | register | preferences | faq | search

next newest topic | next oldest topic

UBBFriend: Email This Page to Someone!

This topic is 5 pages long: 1 2 3 4 5

Author

Topic: NMT

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

posted 06-23-2003 09:29 PM

Nigels, at thistime I treat myself but am going to go to a doctor who also does it so that I can get some more expertise from an outside source. So far so good. The advanced training does not begin until the end of August. What I am excited about is modulating the genes.

[This message has been edited by cure2003 (edited 06-23-2003).]

IP: Logged

TallPaul

Member

Posts: 54

From: Victoria BC Canada

Registered: May 2003

posted 06-23-2003 11:40 PM

I am going to see and NMT doc in Nelson BC middle of july

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

posted 06-24-2003 07:00 AM

Posts: 827
From:
Registered: Jan 2003

Ask him if he has signed up for the support. This important as he can consult with Dr Feinberg and other doctors. Also he gets the latest improvements as they come out.

IP: Logged

nigels
Member

 posted 06-24-2003 07:20 AM

If you use the 'find a NMT practitioner' section of the web site, it identifies who has opted into the support program.

Posts: 110
From: pals dx 11/01 Sydney
Registered: Jan 2003

IP: Logged

sfinnegan
New Member

 posted 06-24-2003 09:33 AM

Cure 2003,
my email is susan.r.finnegan@census.gov
I am interested in info on doctor who has had success with ALS.
Thanks

Posts: 10
From: Louisville, KY
Registered: Jan 2003

IP: Logged

cure2003
Member

 posted 07-15-2003 10:02 PM

TallPaul, have you made the trip to Nelson BC to see the NMT person? Please post what you find out and whay effects the treatment has on you.

Posts: 827
From:
Registered: Jan 2003

Some of you have asked me to email you about NMT. I have not forgotten. I am waiting for some new information.

IP: Logged

cure2003
Member

 posted 07-30-2003 07:10 AM

TallPaul, how did you make out with your trip to Nelson. Fordperfect would you be willing to look into this. Go to the web site and on the patient list you can ask questions to Dr Feinberg.

Posts: 827
From:
Registered: Jan 2003

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

anon1436

Member

Posts: 69

From: Dallas, TX

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 08-02-2003 11:14 AM bump

IP: Logged

 posted 08-02-2003 11:21 AM

Cure -

You were going to email some examples of success and the doctors involved. Whatever happened to that?

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 09-14-2003 07:47 PM

I have heard of an ever increasing sucess with the use of advanced NMT. I do not know if this has been used on ALS yet and I never made it to the advanced training yet. I hope to go in November. However, there are people who have gone for treatment and improved. I would like to hear from those who have experienced the treatment and either improved or not. Reporting all results is what gets us soemwhere. I am still totally functional-for how long I don't know yet.

IP: Logged

anon1436

Member

Posts: 69

From: Dallas, TX

Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 09-14-2003 09:58 PM

Cure -

Back in May you said you were going to email some examples of success and the doctors involved. Whatever happened to that?

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

 posted 09-14-2003 10:58 PM

I can't give out names of doctors on the board but will do it by email. I can't give out

9/15/2003
FILED

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

anon1436

Member

Posts: 69

From: Dallas, TX

Registered: Jan 2003

IP: Logged

 posted 09-15-2003 12:25 AM

Cure -

I'm most interested in practitioners that my practitioner can contact by phone or email to discuss treatment options and results. If you don't still have my email address I'll be happy to send it to you.

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

IP: Logged

 posted 09-15-2003 06:49 AM

Anon, I will have this done before the end of the week. What is extremely exciting is the inxreased efficacy due to the advanced work that is going on.

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

IP: Logged

 posted 10-05-2003 12:59 PM

For those I have not responded to I will try and get at it today. For those who have not checked it out go to the web site www.neuromodulationtechnique.com

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

IP: Logged

 posted 12-17-2003 10:37 PM

I have to apologize for my lack of getting back to people who are interested in this technique. I will try to contact as many people as possible who have treated people with ALS and see what their response has been.

Billanaussie

New Member

Posts: 6
From: Australia
Registered: Oct 2003

 posted 12-18-2003 06:44 PM

Nigel

Can you keep me informed on how you go with this Australian Doc as i am dx aug and live at Junee NSW

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

Posts: 827
From:
Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 12-20-2003 05:47 PM

I have started the process of finding who has been treated and what doctors have had the most success. Soon I will have results. Some of you on this list have been treated. How are you doing?

IP: Logged

nigels

Member

Posts: 110
From: pals dx 11/01 Sydney
Registered: Jan 2003

 posted 12-23-2003 02:31 AM

Billanaussie, hi

I gave up on the WA Dr.

I got one cold email from him.

If he was not excited, I would rather not fly 5 hours to see him.

Thought I would wait till someone in the USA developed a suitable aproach, then fly there.

I hope you keep well.

Nigel

IP: Logged

Billanaussie

New Member

Posts: 6
From: Australia
Registered: Oct 2003

 posted 12-23-2003 06:44 AM

Nigels

thanks for your reply hope it works out, maybe you can keep us informed, as I am new to all this all the best for christmas

Bill

IP: Logged

cure2003

Member

 posted 12-23-2003 08:03 AM

Posts: 827

From:

Registered: Jan 2003

There is a better chance for success with the new advanced techniques. Also, you would want the doctor to be getting online support with this. Since it is relatively new it is better to go to someone who is willing to take supervision while they give treatments.

IP: Logged

next newest topic | next oldest topic

This topic is 5 pages long: 1 2 3 4 5

All times are ET (US)

Administrative Options: Close Topic | Archive/Move | Delete Topic

Post New Topic

Post Reply

Hop to:

Contact Us | MGH Neurology | Privacy Statement

Powered by  InfoPOP ©2000
Ultimate Bulletin Board 5.47b

Please take a moment to fill out the Pew Internet & American Life Project's E-Patients Survey.

Results will be posted here in the near future, and it will greatly help the medical community understand and work with patients who use the Internet!

If anyone has any questions or comments about it, please post here.

Here are some of the results from a BrainTalk survey we did back in October.

Required Reading - "Netiquette": The Etiquette of Cyberspace

By accessing this website, you acknowledge and agree to the terms of Massachusetts General Hospital's Official Disclaimer and Privacy Policy.

Interested in financially helping this community?

Thank you, and please see the following pages about either personal donation or corporate/foundation sponsorship

This BrainTalk Communities WebRing site
is owned by John Lester

List All Sites - View Statistics - Join!

[Previous | Skip Next | Next 5 Sites | Random Site | Next]

These forums are owned and maintained by the Department of Neurology at Massachusetts General Hospital
WebSpinner/Community Manager - John Lester

INTERNET ARCHIVE

Enter Web Address:

All ☒

Adv. Search Compare Archive Pages

Searched for <http://soul-centered-healing.com/NMT.htm>

3 Results

* denotes when site was updated.

Search Results for Jan 01, 1996 - Jun 15, 2004

1996	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004
0 pages	0 pages	0 pages	0 pages	0 pages	0 pages	1 pages	2 pages	0 pages
						Dec 05, 2002 *	Jun 22, 2003 * Jul 15, 2003

Home | Help

Copyright © 2001, Internet Archive | Terms of Use | Privacy Policy

NeuroModulation Technique

What is NeuroModulation Technique?

NeuroModulation Technique is a method of healing unique in all the world of health care. It is based upon widely accepted neurophysiological models. NeuroModulation Technique is a system of healing that will enable the doctor to treat conditions well out of the reach of traditional methods. It is the product of 20 years of study of all the various energetic techniques such as TBM, NAET, NET, JMT, BEST, and many others. We have known that these methods produced results but the results were inconsistent, improving from the earlier methods to the more recent of these methods such as JMT. Their goal has been to correct faulty functioning in the autonomic system responsible for many diseases and musculoskeletal conditions. One glaring problem that has kept many doctors away from these methods is that they are based on the use of radionically charged vials and seemingly arbitrary reflex points. In studying these early techniques, Leslie S. Feinberg, the NeuroModulation Technique founder, made the decision to suspend disbelief and learn the methods to find out what it was that worked about them, and what was nonsense. After all, sometimes we find in the world of medical education that someone has found something that works; but doesn't understand why it works. Some techniques have started this way and the originators have simply imagined their way to a whole complex of unsupportable and arbitrary procedures to teach.

How Was NeuroModulation Technique Developed?

NeuroModulation Technique is a proprietary system of health care treatment based upon a method of accessing and assessing the autonomic control system of the patient through muscle response testing utilizing verbal and/or non-verbal semantic questions and statements. Performance of that autonomic system is modulated with a combination of verbal and/or non-verbal corrective commands and statements. This process is further augmented and reinforced with percussive or other stimulation of vertebral segments, specific breathing patterns, and other sensory stimuli. It is based upon widely accepted neurophysiological models. There are no vials, special reflex points, or potions used. We approach very literally the proposition that the closest analogy to the human nervous system is the computer. We use a unique form of muscle response testing to access, assess the autonomic nervous system, and modulate the performance of autonomic function with specific semantic reprogramming and debugging scripts. The NMT method is based on generally recognized principles of neurophysiology, physiology, psychology, linguistics, and anatomy and constitutes a unique and proprietary system of health care protected by applicable laws of United States patent, copyright, and trademark laws.

What Can be Treated with NeuroModulation?

NeuroModulation Technique produces instantaneous and profound results in virtually all forms of illness which are provoked by faults in the function of the autonomic nervous system. This list includes all allergies, chronic degenerative diseases such as all forms of arthritis; multiple sclerosis and other demyelinating diseases; Crohn's disease, IBS, and gastric reflux disease; infectious disease processes; all autoimmune diseases; acute and chronic musculoskeletal conditions; addictions, emotional, psychological and sensory/motor neurologic disturbances. Even classic orthopedic and neurologic signs and tests take on a whole new meaning when you see these tests turn from positive at first examination of the patient to negative at the end of treatment - yet the patient has not been manipulated, or subjected to any form of physical therapy. Pain disappears instantly, spasm melts like a dusting of snow in the afternoon sun, and range of motion releases as completely and profoundly as if the patient had been through weeks of therapy and rest. The patient's autonomic nervous system has simply been accessed and modulated in the direction of normal function. NMT will change the way you look at illness. For many conditions illness now becomes a problem of data processing of the biocomputer. It is now subject to real time correction as you use NMT to reprogram and debug that biocomputer just as literally as you might the computer that sits on your desktop.

To contact our NMT practitioner, click here.

Text from neuromodulationtechnique.com. For more information, visit their website here: <http://web.archive.org/web/20030622115627/http://neuromodulationtechnique.com/whatis.cfm>.

● Home ●

Therapies - Traditional Chinese Medicine (Acupuncture, Herbs), Nambudripad's Allergy Elimination Techniques (NAET), JMT (Jaffe - Mellor technique), Noetic Field Balancing (Energy Therapy), Long Distance Healing (Noetic Field Therapy), Emotional Freedom Techniques (EFT), Parenting Education, Lifeforce Plan, Therapeutic Massage / Zen Body Therapy®, Polarity Therapy, Nutrition and Ayurvedic Education

Practitioners - Dr. Danielle Hampton, DOM LAC, Win Hampton, MA, LuAnne Sugar, Amadea Morningstar, John M. Browning

ELDORADO acupuncture AND WELLNESS CENTER

7 Avenida Vista Grande, Ste. D6, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87508

Phone: 505-466-2676

E-mail: soulcentered@earthlink.net awakening one community at a time...naturally!

Red's Stuff
An earth friendly organic cleaner that works!
• Disinfects 2X better than Clorox • Cheaper than toxic store-bought options • Multi-purpose: vegetable wash, dishes, countertops, bathrooms, plants, mold, laundry pre-spoil, insect deterrent Earth friendly

Daily E-Zine

Sign up for our Daily E-Zine

Search National Site

Search

Home

Articles Archives

Daily E-Zine

Franchise Info

NA Cities

Glossary

Classifieds

Publishers

Lea en español

NeuroModulation Technique by Kitt Walsh

From whatever wise woman first risked a coronary by eating foxglove for chest pains right up to the courage of Madame Curie trying x-rays on herself (and eventually dying of radium poisoning), healing the human body has been one big hit-and-miss experience. Healers of all types have been banging around in the darkness of ignorance with much the same sense of direction as a pinball.

Now, however, at the beginning of the 21st century, the light of knowledge may have dawned...in the form of NeuroModulation Technique (NMT.)

Before NMT is explained, let's start with some basic knowledge of the underlying beliefs upon which this technique is based.

In the second half of the last century, Dr. George Goodheart pioneered a specialty known as "applied kinesiology." In his work, Goodheart found that benign physical stimuli (such as beneficial nutritional supplements) would increase the strength of certain muscles in the human body. Negative physical stimuli (such as harmful chemical sweeteners) would cause those same muscles to suddenly weaken.

In the 1970's, Dr. John Diamond took this one step further with his new discipline called "behavioral kinesiology." Diamond discovered that these same indicator muscles would strengthen or weaken in the presence of positive or negative emotional or intellectual stimuli. A smile would make the muscle test stronger. Expressing hatred would make it test weaker.

Taking the theory even further still, Dr. Diamond found that the human organism could differentiate not only positive from negative stimuli, but life-threatening from life-consuming. It appeared as though, way below the level of what we think of as consciousness, our bodies "know" what's good for them—that human organisms literally "think" with the whole body.

So having accepted for the moment that the body knows more than we can verbally convey, how then is our body to help tell us what's wrong and, even more importantly, help us heal the "dis-ease"?

Dr. Leslie S. Feinberg believes he has found the answer and developed the technique known as NeuroModulation.

To oversimplify a bit (for those of us stunned into mental paralysis by terminology), our body is one big computer, designed not only to process millions of bits and bytes of information constantly, but also set up to repair itself without the help of a computer technician.

Just like in our PCs, the entire system works on a series of switches set to either 0 or 1. Feinberg believes that by asking the internal control center of our body (the Autonomic Control System) questions which can only be answered with a "yes" or "no" answer, he could get the body to diagnose and treat itself.

How do you get an answer from this control center which has no organ of speech attached to it? Through muscle testing.

Lisa Forsythe Michelson, an Acupuncture Physician and Chinese Herbalist has learned the NeuroModulation Technique and is making great use of it in her practice in Naples.

Michelson (after first having obtained a complete medical history on each patient) faces the patient who is seated on a backless stool opposite her. She asks the patient to extend one of his/her arms straight out and then Michelson asks the patient to resist the downward pressure she exerts on that arm. That lets the patient know how it feels to have their arm "locked" in place.

Michelson then proceeds to ask a scripted series of "yes" or "no" questions of the patient's Autonomic Control System (ACS) and, even though some of the questions are rapidly asked or hard for a layman to understand, the patient's ACS system appears to understand perfectly.

A "no" answer and Michelson cannot make the patient's arm unlock. A "yes" answer and the arm goes down like a pump handle.

Through this line of direct questioning, Michelson not only determines certain things which may be causing a patient's problems (like the presence of allergens, viral or bacterial infections, or toxins like pesticides or heavy metals,) but where in the body they are located (endocrine, gastrointestinal, cardiovascular system, etc.).

Once their presence is established, Michelson "asks" the body if these conditions can be safely treated and, if so, the patient turns her back on Michelson who runs a device called an Accustem down the patient's spine, which acts like hitting the "Enter" button on a computer. This is done over the clothing, doesn't hurt a bit, and is noninvasive.

The patient assists by doing some simple breathing exercises for the few seconds this procedure takes and then Michelson directs the immune system to get to work on the problems. She even asks when any future sessions should be scheduled. Three days? Seven days? Are we through?

Results are not only amazing but quick. Allergies thus treated have been known to disappear in a few sessions. One 48-year-old patient came in with allergies to shellfish, dairy, corn and wheat. After three sessions, she was cleared of them all. Other problems are resolved as well. A patient advised to have surgery for Carpal Tunnel Syndrome had her pain resolved in seven sessions. Another patient had her GERD/ Acid Reflux problem solved in one treatment. A 66-year-old female who suffered from Irritable Bowel Syndrome so badly she was a virtual prisoner in her house, was off all medications and free again after four treatments.

Rheumatoid arthritis, fibromyalgia, diabetes, herpes, colitis all are conditions which have been successfully treated with NMT. Michelson herself is working with a patient with Multiple Sclerosis and other practitioners are using the technique on disorders like Macular Degeneration, ALS, and auto-immune diseases like HIV & AIDS.

"NMT is not a cure-all, but it will help a lot of people," says Michelson. "It is so gentle is can be used on children."

The technique works in conjunction with more conventional medicine as well. Michelson is quick to point out that she has the highest regard for Western medicine and never advises patients to disregard their MD's advice.

"NMT works in conjunction with Western medical practices and can offer hope for most chronic ailments," she says. "I am not the healer here. The body heals itself—now that we know how to ask the right questions."

Lisa Forsythe Michelson, D.O.M., L.Ac., Dipl.Ac. & C.H. practices at the Acupuncture Pain Clinic located at 5600 Trail Blvd. Suite 3 in Naples. For more information or an appointment, call (239) 514-1922. See ads page 19 and 26.

Kitt Walsh is a freelance writer who can be reached at (239) 592-1959 or at kittwalsh@yahoo.com

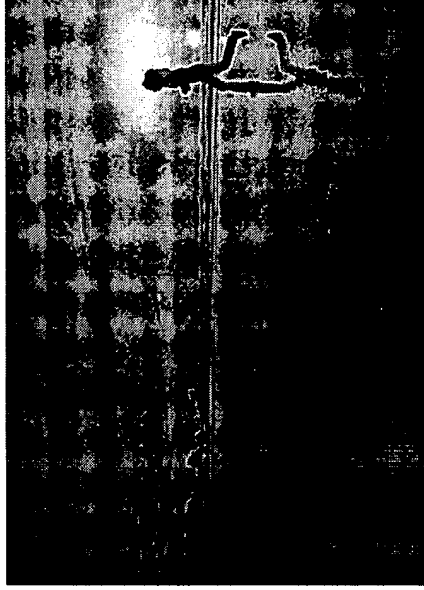

Red's Stuff
An earth friendly organic cleaner that works!

• Disinfects 2X better than Clorox • Cheaper than toxic store-bought options • Multi-purpose: vegetable wash, dishes, countertops, bathrooms, plants, mold, laundry pre-spot, insect deterrent • Earth friendly

All Content Copyright Natural Awakenings 1995-2004
Web Services by iComDesign.com

Neuromodulation Technique

Some of the factors addressed by NMT™ are:

Allergy to any food, inhalant, drug, or contactant.

Autoimmune disease – confusion of the ANS that results in immune attacks on our “self” tissues.

Errors in sensitivity settings of nervous system sensors for pain and stretch causing erroneous perception of pain and tightness.

A Safe, Effective, and Rapid Method of Restoring the Body's Inherent Capacity to Heal.

NMT™ Trains the Control Systems of the Body to Correct the Causes of Disease in a Natural Way.

Introducing Rationality to Energetic Medicine

NeuroModulation Technique™ is a proprietary system of health care developed by Dr. Leslie S. Feinberg of Hermiston, Oregon, and is the result of his exhaustive twenty-year study of the Toxic agents like pesticides, industrial chemicals, and heavy metals.

Unrecognized infectious agents – usually stealthy variations of common organisms that escape detection by the immune system.

Exogenous Analogs – environmental chemicals that mimic our body's hormones, and confuse endocrine (hormonal) function.

Altered Genomic patterns – body cells that have mutated from the normal "self pattern" of our DNA genome.

Pernicious Synaptic Patterning – errors in nervous system data recording that compromises regulation of body function.

many systems of energetic medicine. These methods range from Chinese acupuncture, originated several thousands of years ago, to the many different methods of energetic medicine developed over the past century worldwide. Dr. Feinberg recognized that the many systems of energetic healing he studied were effective in some cases; but results were not predictable and consistent. There seemed to be little in the way of a clear and reasonable theory in these older methods to explain why people get sick, and a rational pathway to restore health.

Dr. Feinberg also recognized that all these older systems of energetic healing must have really been working with the same control mechanisms – just that these mechanisms had never been revealed, and organized into a coherent system of clinical investigation and treatment. In early 2002 a breakthrough in Dr. Feinberg's research resulted in the creation of a powerful system of healing based on the marriage of accepted principles of western science with energetic medicine. NeuroModulation Technique™ has demonstrated that nearly any illness can be improved, and often completely resolved by the application of NMT™ treatment protocols. By correcting faults in the body's regulatory systems NMT™ restores the body's innate capacity to heal – the only path the body has to healing, and wellness.

Why Do We Get Sick in the First Place?

The human body was designed with so powerful a system of internal controls that good health is our natural state. When illness comes, it is often a result of factors that confuse the body's internal control center, the Autonomic Control System (ACS) making it impossible to regulate the body to a healthy state.

NeuroModulation Technique™ Is Based On Accepted Principles of Neurophysiology

The human nervous system is a very sophisticated "bio-computer" that is separated into the conscious/voluntary, and autonomic/unconscious control systems. We aren't aware of the Autonomic Control System that functions in the background of our nervous system – otherwise our conscious mind would be so distracted by body processes that we could not concentrate to do anything else. There is an awareness barrier between these two areas of our brain. We can't know our own blood pressure, or the state of our digestion and other body processes just by thinking about them.

NMT™ uses a clinically friendly method of "Muscle Response Testing" (MRT) to communicate with the ACS. We do this because the ACS does not control speech, and MRT provides a convenient way for it to respond to our queries. NMT™ therapeutic effects on the ACS have been documented with scientifically validated high tech instrumentation including galvanic skin response (GSR), and heart rate variability scanning (HRV).

NMT™ uses this MRT method to first "Access" the ACS – to open the window to "see" internal function. We then "Assess" – to measure the faults in ACS function that are responsible for the patient's illness. Finally, NMT™ uses a powerful system of clinical protocols to "Modulate" the condition – to push the control systems of the body in the direction of normal function. The NMT™ practitioner uses a system of clinical treatment pathways tailored to the various causes of illness we discussed earlier. These protocols involve a series of "queries" – questions used to find control system errors, as shown by MRT. Next the NMT™ practitioner uses specific corrective statements of the protocol to train the ACS toward normal function – the first step in the return to wellness.

How is an NMT™ Treatment Performed?

NMT™ treatment is safe, gentle, and effective. In performing this painless treatment the practitioner and patient usually face one another with the patient seated on a backless swivel chair. Each step of the NMT™ correction involves finding ACS faults, and then delivering the appropriate "query/ correction" script. This resets the ACS for optimal function. The overall template of these reprogramming scripts is similar. Each clinical pathway is unique to the particular aspects of the patient's condition. After each corrective step the patient swivels to place their back toward the practitioner. Then the patient is asked to perform a patterned breathing cycle while the practitioner uses the FDA approved Arthrostim instrument to stimulate vertebra of the spine with a series of gentle taps. Your practitioner may choose variations in patient position, MRT style, and method of spinal stimulation that we teach in NMT™ training - with equally effective results.

How Does NMT™ Correct Disease?

Most chronic degenerative diseases result from confusion of the body's immune system in which the immune system can't tell the difference between our "self" tissue, and foreign invaders to the body. The result is that the immune system attacks our own tissue. The "foreign invaders" may be substances that trigger an allergic response, or it may be microorganisms. The particular disease that develops depends on what tissues are targeted by the immune system. If connective tissues are attacked, the result is rheumatoid arthritis, osteoarthritis, Sjogren's disease, fibromyalgia and related conditions. If the target tissue is the nervous system it may be multiple sclerosis (MS), ALS, and other degenerative nervous system diseases. If the target is the gastrointestinal system the result may be diseases like irritable bowel syndrome (IBS), Crohn's disease, etc. Conditions like hypoglycemia, diabetes, hypothyroidism, and adrenal exhaustion can result when the endocrine system is targeted.

These errors of immune system function can happen as a result of various types of allergy, and also from the presence of some types of pathogenic organisms. Organisms known as "stealth pathogens", "nanobacteria", or "cell wall deficient forms" may go unrecognized in the body by the immune system – instead provoking the immune system into a generalized inflammatory response that harms our own tissues. Reprogramming the immune system to recognize these pathogens allows them to be identified and destroyed, and permits these autoimmune conditions to heal.

NMT™ is also a very rapid and effective way of correcting all allergies – not only those to foods, inhalants, and other external substances; but to body tissues and body chemicals. Allergy is really an error in "tagging" of incoming sensation that tells us we have been exposed to some material. This error provokes the immune system into a defensive response that results in the allergy symptoms we experience. NMT™ attempts to correct the erroneous "tagging", and thereby stops the allergy behavior. NMT™ addresses the faulty process at the heart of all allergies – so it is usually much faster, and more effective than methods that require treatment of each allergen.

Similarly, NMT™ treatment is used to cause the body to recognize external toxins, or chemicals that mimic body hormones, or prevent our enzyme systems to work properly. Toxins such as heavy metals are known to cause many illnesses. NMT™ treatment instructs the body to purge these harmful substances from the tissues, and eliminate them.

How Does NMT™ Resolve Pain In The Body?

Some diseases result from errors in the sensitivity setting of sensors that tell the nervous system what is happening in the body, and in the processing of information from these sensors. Imagine what happens if a pain, or a stretch sensor in a foot, shoulder, or the spine is set to trigger too easily. What if that message is unnecessarily amplified in the central nervous system? This can produce a condition of chronic pain and stiffness that NMT™ rapidly corrects by optimally resetting the nervous system. Conditions that have not responded to drugs, exercise, or physical therapy usually respond well to NMT™. Even the most difficult of such conditions typically show marked improvement within six to twelve visits. Patients are often startled by how rapidly and completely their pain diminishes – often before they leave the treatment chair.

NMT™ also recognizes the harmful effects on our health when our "bio-computer" makes errors in data processing that involve the emotional and psychological aspects of the nervous system. NMT™ has developed the concept of "Pernicious Synaptic Patterning" (PSPs). These are erroneous recording of patterns of data in the nervous system that compromise our brain's information processing system. NMT™ very rapidly identifies these patterns, and gives the ANS the instructions it needs to eliminate the PSPs. Many conditions involve PSPs, and their correction with NMT™ is essential to a complete recovery.

When Is NMT™ Treatment Over?

Dr. Feinberg has personally trained your NMT™ practitioner to very high professional standards. NMT™ training advises our practitioners to work constructively with your other health care providers because our first priority in NMT™ is your optimal health and safety. After you have been examined your practitioner will advise you of the problems revealed by your NMT™ examination. Those examination findings will be the basis for a reasonable milestone (perhaps 6 to 12 visits) within which you should arrive at some agreed upon level of improvement. We do this because every body is unique, and no one can predict precisely when you will clearly recognize change in your condition. It isn't reasonable to simply try one NMT™ treatment, and expect to tell if the method works for you. Some patients may reach a significant level of improvement with their first treatment, sometimes only after several treatments. If your treatment milestone is reached without the expected improvement your practitioner will discuss with you reasonable options based on your response. Usually patients reach, or exceed the progress target of this milestone. Your practitioner will then discuss with you what a reasonable expectation will be to reach maximum improvement. One thing you can be assured of is that even patients who have not responded to many months, or years of other types of treatment usually have excellent clinical responses with NMT™ in a matter of a few weeks, or months.

Who Is A Good Candidate For NMT Treatment?

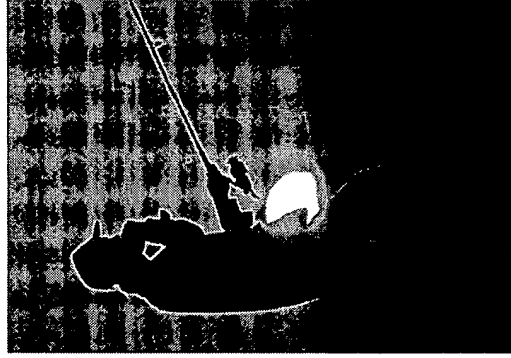

Because NMT™ is non-invasive, non-force, and completely painless there is no one who may not potentially benefit from NMT™. Some patients are infants only a few weeks old who present with food, and other allergies; or infectious conditions. They are treated without so much as a whimper. Some NMT™ patients are people in their 80's and 90's, with conditions like osteoporosis, or arthritis; yet NMT™ is so gentle they have absolutely no discomfort from treatment. Many NMT™ patients are pregnant women, often with low back pain as the presenting complaint. They can't take drugs while pregnant; but NMT™ provides rapid and safe relief of their spinal pain.

Is NMT™ Compatible With The Care My Medical Doctor Provides?

Many patients we treat are concurrently under one form of treatment, or another by their medical physician. NMT™ care does not require you discontinue any care your medical doctor is providing, nor does it conflict with medical care. Your medical doctor will always be an important member of your health care team.

All successful therapeutic relationships are based on trust, and your relationship with your NMT™ practitioner is no exception. It is our obligation to communicate with you honestly, and frankly about your condition, and offer the best possible recommendations for care. If there is anything you don't understand about NMT™ treatment; or if you have concerns about your response to NMT™ care, by all means discuss this openly with your practitioner. You are ultimately in control of all treatment decisions; but you need to understand that those decisions are best made in light of real information from the person best able to advise you about NMT™ – your NMT™ practitioner. Obviously, any member of your health care team who has not had professional NMT™ training will be unqualified to comment on NMT™ for any condition; but your NMT™ practitioner is always available to discuss your NMT™ treatment with other health care providers you are working with.

Begin your course of NMTT treatment with the confidence that NMT™ is safe, and follow the treatment plan you and your provider agreed was a reasonable one for your condition. Recognize that good health is your birthright, and open yourself to the healing experience. If you have concerns about any aspect of your treatment plan at any time, be assured that you can discuss this openly with your NMT™ practitioner, and that your decisions in such matters will always be respected and honored.

Home BioSET Office Nancy Michelli C.N.C.

NeuroModulation Technique™

NeuroModulation Technique was founded by Leslie S. Feinberg, D.C. after 20 years of studies in Energy Medicine. It is a technique to "un-confuse" and "re-regulate" your body's internal subconscious control center, the Autonomic Control System (ACS). Applying a clinical friendly method of subtle Muscle Response Testing, the technique is used to access and assess, through series of verbal/non-verbal "queries", the faults in the ACS function that is responsible for your condition. Then a powerful system of clinical protocols is used, through a script of specific corrective commands, to modulate your ACS faults and push towards your body's normal direction of function. The therapeutic effects of the ACS in NMT have been documented with scientifically validated high-tech instrumentation, including Skin Response (GSR) and Heart Rate Variability Scanning (HRV).

Some conditions treated with NeuroModulation Technique include:

allergies, autoimmune disorders, altered genomic patterns, endocrine disorders, infectious agents, multi-chemical sensitivities and toxins, and neurological pain symptoms.

For more information, visit the Jaffe-Mellor Technique website:
(<http://neuromodulationtechnique.com/practitionerTestimonial.cfm>)